

2011 Tasted Good: Best New DC Restaurants

2011 has seen the advent of some fabulous new restaurants in the D.C. area. Let's take a look back at some of the most successful spots added to the Capital City's culinary scene.

Fiola

601 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20004
(202) 628-2888
www.fioladc.com/

Lunch Hours: Mon-Fri: 11:30 a.m-2:30 p.m.

Dinner Hours: Mon-Thurs 5:30-10:30 p.m.; Fri 5:30-11:30 p.m.; Sat 5:00-11:30 p.m.

At Fiola, Chef Fabio Trabocchi features classic Italian cuisine in an upscale venue. Since its opening in April, diners have been able to choose from decadent antipasti plates such as burrata, a luxurious cheese made with mozzarella and cream, and authentic pasta dishes such as Cacio & Pepe, a Roman-style pasta made with spaghetti, sheep's milk cheese and peppercorn. Even the bar menu at Fiola provides a mouth-watering array of dishes, including mozzarella fritters; rosemary, basil and parmesan Tuscan fries; and Gianduia, a chocolate hazelnut bar.

<http://washington.cbslocal.com/2011/12/28/2011-tasted-good-best-new-dc-restaurants/>

Posted: December 29, 2011